Jailer bill can't break out of House committee

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Legislators worried about some county jailers slacking off on the job ran out of time to win approval for a Senate bill meant to increase accountability for the constitutional office during the 2015 General Assembly session, but it will be reintroduced in 2016.

The schedule called for legislators to wrap up their work in Frankfort March 23-24.

Senate Bill 184, drafted by state Sen. Danny Carroll, R-Paducah, gained the support of the full Senate and had a first reading before the House's Committee on Local Government before the session's end.

Drafted in reaction to the Kentucky Center for Investigative Reporting's piece that found some jailers elected to office in counties without jails take their pay while doing little to earn it, the proposal would have allowed greater oversight by fiscal courts over jailers.

Henry County is one of the places that has a jailer but no jail, but it was not singled out in the news report as a location where the elected official was shirking his duties. By all accounts from his fellow Henry County officials, Jailer Scott Southworth works efficiently and effectively.

Consensus by Henry County officials like Sheriff Danny Cravens was Southworth and his deputies carried out a lot of work that would have to be done by the sheriff's office otherwise. Cravens also stated how the office of a county jailer runs is really more of a local matter.

"It's very rare and there's only just a very few taking advantage of it," Carroll said, reacting to the investigative report. "Ninety-five percent of no-jail jailers, they do a great job and the people get their money's worth."

As written, Carroll believed his proposal would bring more accountability and transparency to the jailer's position and address the concerns raised in the investigative report.

The bill doesn't do away with jailers in locations without jails. Instead, the proposal would give fiscal courts the responsibility of approving an ordinance

Watershed Moment

CHRIS BROOKE/LOCAL

Henry County Middle School eighth grade science teacher Larisa McKinney goes over her water quality studies unit. All of the particulars are posted on McKinney's website for easy sharing, which she did with dozens of teachers when she spoke to the National Science Teachers' Association conference recently. Below, McKinney and students test the water quality of Towne Creek in this submitted photo.

McKinney speaks at national education conference

editor@hclocal.com

Students learn best when they get to wade into their lesson and get their feet wet, such as when the eighth grade science class at Henry County Middle School goes outside the classroom for their hands-on water quality studies.

Science teacher Larisa McKinney shared the benefits of using project-based learning with the National Science Teachers' Association convention in Chicago March 12 through 14. The University of Kentucky included McKinney in one of the first teacher trainings on how to create and conduct water quality testing units for science, and then UK recently paid for McKinney's way to the national science teachers' conference to talk about the benefits of hands-on educational opportunities for students.

"A project-based unit is actually giving the students a problem to solve rather than teaching them by lecture," McKinney explained. "It's not just the same you do this worksheet because they actually know why they're doing it now."

Students retain much more of what they will experience during class if they engage all their senses in the project and work to solve a problem, rather than just trying to remember words from a textbook, she said.

C-Burg school to get upgrades

BY MELISSA BLANKENSHIP
publisher@hclocal.com

When Campbellsburg Elementary students come back to school in the fall, they'll walk into a brighter, better place to learn.

"Improving the learning environment has been proven by study after study to be a very important factor in increasing student achievement. It also improves morale of students, teachers and parents," said Tim Abrams, superintendent of Henry County Public Schools. "Henry County is a wonderful community with awesome kids; they deserve nothing less than a top notch education in a top notch facility."

Bad weather extends the school year

publisher@hclocal.com

After a wild winter with record snowfall, both school districts in the county have modified their school calendars to get in all their required instructional time.

According to regulation, schools must accrue 1,062 hours of instructional time. Both districts had already scheduled more than the required number of hours into their calendar and have some flexibility in scheduling their make-up days.

Eminence Independent Schools missed seven days due to weather. Eminence chose to use one week of their scheduled two-week spring break to make up the first five of those days, then added school days on May 21 and 22. The last day for students will be May 22. Teachers will be asked to owe one more professional development day. Graduation is tentatively planned for Friday, May 22. The traditional closing day celebration at EIS will be held on May 19.

At Henry County, 12 days of school have been cancelled, and 11 of those will need to be made up, pushing the end of school into June.

For HCPS, teachers will need to report to school on May 19 for a professional development day. The last

About 100 people gathered for the Eminence Rotary Club's 23rd Annual Farm City Day held at the Henry County Extension Service March 23. Besides a steak with all the fixings by All the Way Shoppe, attendees heard guest speaker Joe Cain, director of the commodity division of Kentucky Farm Bureau, at left, talk about environmental and state policies, such as the need to modify Kentucky's gas tax to protect the funds needed to improve rural roads.

by each May to spell out the duties of the jailer in the upcoming fiscal year. If approved, Senate Bill 184 would also require jailers to submit a quarterly report summarizing all prisoner transports. These reports must include the prisoner's name, location and time the prisoner came under the custody of the jailer, where the prisoner was taken to and mileage driven. Lastly, the legislation stated that fiscal courts can set two different pay rates for jailers in election years — one rate for an incumbent jailer and one for a newly elected jailer. Salaries would be based on longevity in office, job performance and cost of living adjustments, according to the bill. Carroll said this language was later stripped from the bill. Sen. Paul Hornback, who represents Henry County, voted with the majority to approve the changes to the oversight of jailers. As written, Rep. Rick Rand said this bill really wouldn't change or add much in the way of local oversight. Fiscal courts can already set what salary it wants to pay and ask for more reports from jailers. "They should know the activities of the jailer because they pay for them," Rand said. "What better way to track something than to pay for it." Carroll intends to file his proposal again when the 2016 General Assembly session comes around.

day for students will be Wednesday, June 3, with closing day for teachers being Thursday, June 4. Graduation commencement for HCHS will be Friday, June 5. Both schools will still be closed on Memorial Day, Monday, May 25. Both Boards of Education have amended their calendars to reflect these changes, and still have a few days to work with, without changing their last day of school, in the unlikely event additional make-up days are needed. "If we were to have a weird April snow, we still have two days in there to work with," said HCPS Superintendent Tim Abrams at the last Henry County Board of Education meeting. "We're not out of March yet," quipped board member Danney Chisholm.

TALKING TO KIDS ABOUT ALCOHOL

5 Conversation Goals

- 1. Show you disapprove of underage drinking.
Over 80% of young people ages 10-18 say their parents are the leading influence on their decision to drink or not drink. So they really are listening, and it's important that you send a clear and strong message.

- 2. Show you care about your child's happiness and well-being.
Young people are more likely to listen when they know you're on their side. Try to reinforce why you don't want your child to drink—not just because you say so, but because you want your child to be happy and safe. The conversation will go a lot better if you're working with, and not against, your child.

- 3. Show you're a good source of information about alcohol.
You want your child to be making informed decisions about drinking, with reliable information about its dangers. You don't want your child to be learning about alcohol from friends, the internet, or the media—you want to establish yourself as a trustworthy source of information.

- 4. Show you're paying attention and you'll notice if your child drinks.
You want to show you're keeping an eye on your child, because young people are more likely to drink if they think no one will notice. There are many subtle ways to do this without prying.

- 5. Build your child's skills and strategies for avoiding underage drinking.
Even if your child doesn't want to drink, peer pressure is a powerful thing. It could be tempting to drink just to avoid looking uncool. To prepare your child to resist peer pressure, you'll need to build skills and practice them.

Keep it low-key. Don't worry, you don't have to get everything across in one talk. Many small talks are better.

The Henry County Communities In Action (CIA) Coalition is serious about preventing underage drinking in the community. A series of articles will be published in The Local to heighten the awareness of the dangers of underage drinking. The Henry County Sheriff's Department has partnered with us to support enforcement strategies, which hinder underage drinking activities. The CIA is a coalition committed to health education, wellness and substance abuse prevention strategies in Henry County. Meeting are held on the third Tuesday each month, Henry County Library, 172 Eminence Terrace, Eminence, KY at 9 a.m. Please keep in mind, Underage Drinking, Adult Consequences.

Basketball season leaves me odd woman out

It's a very awkward time of year for someone who is not a huge college basketball fan.

Someone like me. I am not staying up late watching the games. I am not trolling facebook looking for extra tickets to games. No, I did not watch the game last night. I am not sweating my bracket.

I did fill out a bracket...in like three minutes. And that was primarily as a means to test the Local's new online version of the bracket (which will be switched to a more user-friendly format next year). I'm not sure how it's doing, but I guess badly. I don't really remember the teams I picked, other than Kentucky to win it all.

MELISSA blankenship

As I said, I'm not a fan, but I am also not a moron.

You would have to be living under a rock to not know about UK's incredible season. I will be the first to admit that I am a UofL fan (Go Cards!), but I can't help being a little excited for the boys in blue right now. A perfect season capped by a national championship?

It's almost unimaginable.

From conversations I've had with people who do watch college basketball, I'm told it's UK's tournament to lose. By all rights, nobody should beat the Wildcats this year, but crazy things happen during March Madness.

Consider the first round topplings of two No. 3 seeds by No. 14 seeds in UAB's win over Iowa State and Georgia State's win over Baylor.

And there's No. 11 seed Dayton who took out No. 6 seed Providence. Not as dramatic, but No. 7 seed VCU was eliminated by No. 10 seed Ohio State.

Not that I watched the game, but I heard that No. 4 seed UofL barely made it out of the first round of the tournament with a two-point margin over 13 seed UC Irvine. That would have been embarrassing, even for a football fan like me.

It would be great if UofL and UK both made it to the Final Four, but I know there's a lot of basketball to be played before that can happen. Of course, I would love for the Cards to win it all, but I can't help rooting for the Cats to have their fairy tale ending.

It would be good for UK and good for the state of Kentucky.

And it couldn't hurt my busted bracket either.

Local politicians work together for agriculture and small business

SUBMITTED PHOTO

Sen. Paul Hornback, R-Shelbyville (left), confers with Rep. Rick Rand, D-Bedford, as they present legislation before the House Agriculture and Small Business Committee.

Passing laws to encourage economic development

Each legislative session, the public understandably focuses most of its attention on the biggest issues facing the General Assembly, which this year range from addressing a heroin epidemic to modernizing rules for the telecommunications industry.

There are always other measures, however, that also deserve recognition because of the positive impact they will have on the state. With the House and Senate returning to the Capitol early this week for the session's final two days, it is worth noting many of those bills that are set to become law.

Several, for example, will help spur economic development across the state. One will make it easier for Kentucky's inventors to use the internet to raise money locally to turn their ideas into reality, while two others will use tax incentives to make the commonwealth a more inviting place for the film and television industry and for the Breeders Cup as it readies for this year's races at Keeneland in the fall and is considering future sites in the years ahead. This event, which began in the mid-1980s, is called the richest two days in sports and has been a frequent visitor here during that time.

Rick Rand

Some of the new laws will help our non-profits and charitable organizations. One will add Kentucky to the 15 or so other states adopting model legislation that streamlines how non-profits operate, which will help local sporting groups and others while better protecting individuals from the debt non-profits may acquire.

Our charitable organizations will soon be able to host more fundraising events, and their raffles are poised to be sold beyond the county an organization is based in. We also updated the law to allow electronic pull tab devices to be used in charitable gaming, which may help raise interest.

Some of the health-care-related legislation to pass this year will increase insurance coverage for colorectal cancer screenings and make the public more aware of stroke-ready facilities across the state. We also updated the law for families making difficult end-of-life decisions for loved ones.

In an effort to reduce illegal drug use, the General Assembly has passed legislation that will encourage more people to become alcohol/drug counselors. With broader license requirements now in place, those with graduate degrees will have more opportunities within this profession, and so will former addicts who want to help others escape this deadly cycle. These front-line workers play a critical role in our efforts to stop addiction.

One new law this year will help school districts that have accumulated a large number of snow days this winter, and another will, for the first time in more than a generation, update the state's laws for the oil and gas industry. This measure has the backing of business and environmental groups alike and sets reasonable standards for the growing practice of fracking, which taps these fuels deep underground. In another industry overhaul, legislators also standardized rules for internet-based ride-sharing programs being offered through such services as Lyft and Uber.

For farmers and other programs that benefit from the major settlement that Kentucky and many other states reached with tobacco companies in the late 1990s, a new law this year will make sure the terms of that agreement are more strictly enforced. Last summer, Kentucky reached a deal with these companies that claimed we did not do enough, but this law should alleviate any doubt going forward.

Our work passing legislation is over this week, as I mentioned earlier, and the hope as of this writing is that the House and Senate found common ground on several unresolved issues. That includes heroin legislation and bills affecting the long-term financial liability in teacher retirement and a plan to expand civil protective orders to victims of dating violence, stalking and sexual assault.

I will report on what more we are able to accomplish this week in a future column. In the meantime, please don't hesitate to contact me throughout the year if you have any concerns about any aspect of state government. My address is Room 366B, Capitol Annex, 702 Capitol Avenue, Frankfort, KY 40601; or you can email me at Rick.Rand@lrc.ky.gov.

Therapists and doctors make great allies

As a physician it is my job to help each patient live the best quality of life possible.

Medications or surgical interventions help with many diseases, but these are just two ways to improve medical conditions.

Some of my greatest allies in improving patient outcomes are our very talented therapists.

The most utilized therapists are trained in speech, occupational and physical therapy. These therapists are available to help patients in the hospital, clinic and home health settings.

Each type of therapist offers a specific skill set to help patients.

Physical therapists work to help enhance mobility by improving

Katherine jett
Baptist Medical Associates

strength, balance, endurance, flexibility and posture.

A physical therapist treats patients who suffer physical limitations because of ailments such as arthritis, strains, sprains, bone injuries, strokes, overall weakness, deconditioning, back pain and orthopedic surgeries.

Working with a physical therapist can help an individual improve performance and return to athletic activities, perform normal daily activities, decrease pain and avoid unnecessary medication and surgery. Physical therapy helps with walking, range of motion and movements of larger body parts known as gross motor activities.

The exercise and rehabilitation plan is individualized for each patient and can produce life changing improvements in one's physical capabilities.

Often the exercise plan can be utilized to prevent further injuries and treat flares of old injuries.

Physical therapists also use elements of stretching, ultrasound therapy and stimulator machines as part of a multimodal approach to getting the body back on track.

Occupational therapy focuses on helping people achieve independence in their activities of daily living including academic, self-help and social activities.

Occupational therapy tends to focus on fine-motor skills such as movements involving the fingers that allow one to button a shirt, tie shoes and write with a pen.

The goal of occupational therapy is to focus on activities that allow you to function independently. Some examples are dressing, toileting, bathing, shopping, cooking and driving.

Speech-language pathology services strive to boost one's ability to communicate and swallow.

Speech therapy can help patients speak more clearly, improve memory, and improve organizational skills. Speech therapy can help a patient improve swallowing and make sure that things go "down the right pipe."

Aspirating food or saliva into the lungs can cause pneumonia and severe breathing problems. Sitting down to dinner and having a conversation may seem like a trivial part of life, but this simple act can have a tremendous impact on one's quality of life.

The take home message is simple. Utilizing our physical, occupational, and speech therapists is an absolute necessity to help patients improve their physical health and quality of life.

In honor of March Madness, I'll leave you with a quote from Coach Calipari – "You have one choice, and that is to get better."

If you think you or your loved one may benefit from therapy services, talk with your doctor and begin working toward better health.

No pressure, but let's lower your blood pressure

If you've been diagnosed with high blood pressure, your heart is working overtime. Also known as hypertension, high blood pressure not only raises the risk of heart disease. It also increases risks to your arteries, brain, kidneys and eyes.

Blood pressure measurements give you two readings: the top number is the pressure in your arteries when your heart pumps blood. The bottom number is the pressure in arteries between beats.

If you don't know what your blood pressure is, it's time to find out. Bottom line? High blood pressure can be a silent killer. What increases blood pressure? As usual, certain risks are outside your control. That includes genetics, age and a family history of hypertension. In some cases, certain medications can raise blood pressure.

Bluegrass Drug Company

Let your pharmacist look over a list of your medications to make sure that's not true for you.

In most cases, though, doctors don't know the exact cause. What they do know is that making lifestyle changes can make a big difference.

Here are some things you can do:

1. Lose a few. Even five to ten pounds can make a difference in blood pressure. Studies have also found that belly fat may be the kind that's most likely linked to high blood pressure.

2. Exercise. Try to exercise 30 to 60 minutes more days of the week than not. You may see a change in your numbers within just a few weeks.

3. Make a DASH for it. The Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension (DASH) diet is rich in whole grains, fruits, vegetables and low-fat dairy products. Go easy with foods high in saturated fats and cholesterol.

4. Limit salt, alcohol and caffeine. Read food labels, eat fewer processed foods and don't add salt to your food. Track your habits so you can see exactly how much alcohol and caffeine you drink each week.

Small amounts of alcohol can actually lower your blood pressure. But more than moderate amounts can do just the opposite.

Likewise, caffeine can also boost blood pressure. Check your pressure 30 minutes after you drink a cup of coffee and see if it's more than 10 points higher than at other times of day.

5. Go smoke-free. Smoking can be a tough habit to kick. If that's true for you, get help to quit for good. And, remember: Even second-hand smoke isn't harmless.

6. Chill out. Easier said than done, I know. But stress can temporarily boost your blood pressure. You know better than anyone what helps you relax. Try to build that into your daily (or weekly) routine.

If your doctor gives you medication for high blood pressure, take it exactly as prescribed. But be patient. It can take a while to get your numbers where they need to be. You may also need to try more than one medicine. There are many classes of high blood pressure drugs, and it can get confusing. As you know, your pharmacist is here as a resource.

You can't feel blood pressure, so there's only one way to know medicine or a lifestyle change is working: Consider buying a blood pressure cuff from our store so you can regularly check your blood pressure.

Why I'm a diabetes advocate

Editor's note: This piece by community activist Mona Huff was originally published by the American Diabetes Association. Used with permission. Huff was one of 200 advocates from around the country convening in Washington, D.C., for the American Diabetes Association's biannual Call to Congress March 10, and she wrote this article as a result.

I am thankful and humbled to have been selected to attend Call to Congress.

Who am I? Just a grandma who has lived with type 2 diabetes for 11 years. I was very ill when I was first diagnosed. However, with a complete lifestyle change, I am doing better now than I was at age 50! I am soon to be 68.

My diabetes experience doesn't end there. My mother had diabetes late in life, but she did not have to take medication.

Her aunt also had diabetes, but she did not take care of herself and lived at a time when treatments were less advanced and died young.

I remember my great-aunt dining with us and overeating, then taking additional insulin to bring her blood glucose down. I was young, and it scared me. I think those memories helped me to take the disease very seriously—as we all should.

I'll do anything I can to increase awareness of diabetes. I have spoken at the Diabetes Advocacy Day in my state capital of Frankfort.

I am active in my community and with my local association office. What first was considered a curse for me has now become my life passion. I am a community organizer for KIPDA (Kentuckiana Regional Planning & Development Agency) Rural Diabetes Grant, which is funded through the Centers for Disease Control.

I lead our community diabetes coalition and the "Live Empowered!" program in local churches. I sign up for the local walks. I facilitate Stanford Diabetes Self-Management Classes.

I also lead a support group based on the National Diabetes Education Program's "New Beginnings," which is for the person living with diabetes and their family and friends. It really deals with the emotions and stress of diabetes, which are so important to address.

But Call to Congress—and the chance to speak with members of Congress and their staffs about this cause—may be my biggest moment yet in the fight to stop diabetes.

Why am I a diabetes advocate?

I want to help policymakers realize that diabetes is a serious disease that has reached epidemic levels. They need to understand how important education and resources are to the community, especially rural communities.

When I was diagnosed, we had nothing available in Henry County.

Fortunately, I understood the importance of learning about the disease. I had two friends who really encouraged me to learn more and get to know my body.

However, I know from my work that many folks do not have that motivation, or that access to information.

We need to empower people to believe that they are the most important person on their health care team.

My mantra has been: Diabetes is a personal diagnosis.

Diabetes is a family diagnosis, Diabetes is a community diagnosis,

And together we can win the battle!

And Congress, we need your help!

Just because you're not part of Call to Congress doesn't mean you can't help. Anyone who is affected by diabetes—and who isn't? — can be an advocate.

Please learn more and sign our petition to Congress at <http://stop-diabetes.com/petition>.

Together, we can win this battle.

RECORDER CONCERT

MELISSA BLANKENSHIP/LOCAL

Before the March Henry County School Board meeting hosted by Campbellsburg Elementary School, third through fifth grade students performed a recorder concert for their parents, board members and guests. Afterward, all were invited to view a display of student art work. Above, the trio of Sawyer Mayse, Nathen Corum and Jacob Davidson teamed up for one song. Top left, Holly Hosey performed a recorder version of "Old McDonald had a Farm." Left, Aaliyah Wilson also performed for guests last Monday evening.

EMINENCE TEAM WINS DISTRICT GOVERNOR'S CUP

MELISSA BLANKENSHIP/LOCAL

The team moved from "worst to first," said Superintendent Buddy Berry of the Eminence Elementary School academic team. Only in its second year, the team recently won the 2015 District Governor's Cup. Despite the fact they only competed in two of four categories, the team earned enough points to be named champions of the competition. The team and coaches were recognized at last Tuesday's Eminence school board meeting and wished good luck for regionals, which were held over the weekend. Team members include: Avery Stivers, Ashton Montgomery, Kayla Harger, Vince Dentinger, Sara Welch, Andrew Rogers, Elijah Cook and Jaxon Scriber. Coaches are Anna Kristin Lewis and Donnie Piercey.

Use natural coloring to brighten your Easter

In just a few weeks, the Easter bunny will be hippity-hopping into many Kentucky homes. Along with the annual visit from our long-eared friend, coloring Easter eggs is one of the favorite holiday activities for children of all ages. While many of us are accustomed to purchasing the little dye tablets from the store, you can also use natural ingredients to get colorful results. Ingredients like fresh beets, yellow onion skins and fruit juices can dye eggs. Here's a list of natural dye sources and the colors they produce if you would like to try something new.

- Fresh beets—pinkish red
- Yellow onion skins—orange
- Spinach leaves—pale green
- Red cabbage leaves or canned blueberries—blue
- Strong brewed coffee—beige to brown
- Grape, cranberry, pomegranate or beet juice—grey/purple/red

• Golden Delicious apple peels—green-gold

Begin with eggs that are hard boiled or blown out.

If you plan to eat them, hard-boiled eggs should be cooled quickly after cooking and stored in the refrigerator until used. They should never be held at room temperature for longer than two hours.

Choose your desired color and place the natural dye in a pan large enough for water to be one inch above the dye material.

Bring the water to a boil. Simmer for about 15 minutes or until the desired color is achieved.

Remember eggs will be a lighter color than the dye mixture.

Remove the pan from heat and strain the dye into a measuring cup.

Add two to three teaspoons of white vinegar for each cup of strained dye.

Pour the mixture into a container deep enough to completely cover eggs. Place the eggs in water and wait until desired color is achieved.

Remove the eggs from the mixture and dry naturally.

Remember that naturally dried eggs will have a dull finish, but you can rub them with cooking oil to make them shine.

If you plan to eat the dyed eggs, be sure to use food-grade materials or dyes for coloring.

As well as the natural dyes listed above, it's safe to use commercial egg dyes, liquid food coloring or fruit-drink powders.

Make sure no cracks develop in the eggs as these leave openings for bacteria, which can result in illness.

If you're going to consume eggs that have been used in an egg hunt, hide eggs in places away from dirt, moisture, pets and other possible sources of bacteria.

Do not hunt these eggs longer than two hours.

Eggs can be washed and either eaten immediately or put back in the refrigerator within two hours. Use them within one week of cooking.

Canines go to summer camp through 4-H club

Most children are introduced to "man's best friend" early in life, but oftentimes a dog's care, training and upkeep are chores left to their parents. The 4-H Dog Program offers young dog enthusiasts the opportunity to learn about all aspects of canines and strengthens the bond between them. No matter your child's experience level, there is a dog program to suit their interests. Young people explore topics such as dog anatomy, health, nutrition and potential genetic problems.

They also learn about population control, showmanship, training, ethics and budgeting for animal expenses.

Experienced 4-H'ers can take their education a step further by learning about responsible breeding, diseases, caring for geriatric dogs, training, service dogs, dog roles and careers related to dogs.

In the process of working with dogs, 4-H members learn valuable life skills including responsibility, respect, planning and organizing, decision making and leadership.

A popular annual event for dog program participants is the Kentucky 4-H Camp Canine. The 2015 camp is May 15-17 at the J.M.

Feltner 4-H Camp in London.

During this camp, 4-H'ers and their dogs will get to participate in many activities including obedience, agility and jumping chutes.

Applications and more detailed information are available on the Kentucky 4-H website at <http://4-h.ca.uky.edu/content/agriculture/dog-program>.

Registration applications for dog camp are due to county 4-H youth development agents by April 10.

Dog shows are another popular event among 4-H members. Young people participate in dog shows, while they learn the proper showing and grooming techniques.

Youth will learn how to show their animal, train puppies and practice for a skillathon, as well as research diseases, administer emergency first aid and explore dog laws.

The Kentucky 4-H Dog Show is scheduled for Aug. 15-16 at the Kentucky Exposition Center.

Registration is available through the county extension agent for 4-H youth development.

The deadline to register is July 10.

The Henry County 4-H Dog Club meets the first and third Monday of the month at the 4-H Fairgrounds building on Hwy. 421 at 6 p.m.

Please bring your dog on a leash and their favorite treat.

Contact the Henry County Cooperative Extension Service at 845-2811 for more details about dog programs.

Kentucky named to farm-to-school food initiative

Kentucky is one of three states that will partner with the Walmart Foundation and the National Farm to School Network to expand efforts to get more local foods into schools, the network announced recently.

"Kentucky has led the way in helping schools locate and purchase local foods for their students while at the same time helping farmers find new markets for their products," Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said. "We're grateful to the National Farm to School Network and the Walmart Foundation for recognizing Kentucky's leadership and awarding private-sector funding to help us provide our students with fresh, nutritious local foods."

The Seed Change project will jump start programs that get local foods into schools and enhance food education for more than 1.8 million school children in Kentucky, Louisiana and Pennsylvania, the National Farm to School

Network wrote in a news release.

A total of 100 farm-to-school sites in the participating states each will receive $5,000 grants to implement farm-to-school activities, the network's statement said. Applications for mini-grants will be accepted later this spring. Two model school districts in each state will serve as demonstration sites and training hubs for other school districts.

The three-state initiative is funded by a grant from the Walmart Foundation.

The news release points out that more than 12.5 million American children and adolescents between 2-19 years old are obese. More than 5 billion lunches and more than 2.2 billion school breakfasts were served in U.S. schools in 2013, the network said.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture's Farm to School Program connects school food service systems with local farmers and food producers. The program helps students learn to appreciate the importance of local foods and grow into well-informed consumers who demand local foods as adults.

Kentucky schools in the KDA program served local foods to an estimated 364,000 children in approximately 702 schools in the 2011-2012 school year. A total of 84 school districts are members of Kentucky Proud.

The Kentucky Farm to School Program runs the Farm to School Junior Chef competition, in which high school cooking teams throughout the Commonwealth compete for scholarships while learning basic cooking techniques and being educated about the importance of local foods.

scored the first run. Bodie came up with the big hit that broke the game open. “Bodie’s big hit was an important play in the game, but I think Connor reading the passed ball with two out to score the first run was a key play. It broke the ice.” The Wildcats also showed strong defense for early in a season that has been the best for practicing. They had no errors in the game. “We pitched really well, only walking two batters,” Dill said. “I was also pleased with the defense considering that we haven’t been able to get on the field much for practice.”

HCHS 8 Spencer Co. 6

The Wildcats traveled to Taylorsville the next day and showed they could win a completely different kind of game. After getting only one hit in their first win, the Wildcats piled up 10 base hits against the Spencer County Bears. The game started as if it would be a repeat of the Frankfort game with neither team scoring in the first two innings. But Henry County scored three runs in the third inning after third baseman Isaac Kent led off with a double. Kent was eventually thrown out trying to score but Trey Wills, Jaydon Berry and Clark all eventually scored runs in the inning. Clark had another big hit, getting a 2-run double to score Berry and Wills. Clark scored on the next play when Tyler Robbins’ line drive was misplayed by the Bears’ rightfielder. Berry, a freshman started on the mound for the Wildcats and held the Bears scoreless through the first two and two-thirds innings, but Spencer County got two singles and a home run with two outs to tie the score. Berry came back to strikeout the next batter to stop the Bears’ rally. Kent scored in the fourth inning on an RBI single by Wills to put the Cats up 4-3. Berry finished his first high school outing by pitching a scoreless fourth inning and striking out the final batter with runners on second and third. Spencer County came back to take a 6-4 lead in the fifth inning when they scored three runs on Henry County’s first error of the season, a double, two hit batters and a fielder’s choice. Henry County tied it in the top of the sixth. Kent reached on an error by the third baseman and eventually scored on a single by Trey Wills. Tyler Robbins scored Wills on a two-out single to centerfield to make it 6-6. Daniel Murray came on to pitch for the Cats in the sixth inning and shut the Bears down while giving up only one hit. Henry County scored two runs in the seventh when Kent singled, a pitch hit Nick Riggins and Trey Wills reached on a fielder’s choice to load the bases. Berry, who moved to shortstop after leaving the mound, came up with a big two-out, two-run double to put the Cats ahead. The Bears managed to get runners on second and third with two outs in the bottom of the inning but Murray escaped trouble when the final Bears’ batter popped out to Robbins, the Wildcats’ catcher. Dill liked his team’s determination in this game. “I was happy to see us battle back from behind to win in the late innings after giving up the lead,” he said. “I was also happy with our freshmen pitchers who all gave us good production on the mound. Our defense let us down a little and they still pitched well as freshmen in their first varsity appearances. I was also happy to see our offense respond to get 10 hits a night after getting only one.” “Jaydon Berry gave us four strong innings in his first varsity start,” Dill continued. “The runs he gave up should have never happened because of a defensive mental error. He also came up with a big hit in the seventh inning to drive in the winning runs. Daniel Murray also pitched well as a freshman, making big pitches in two shut-out innings to earn the win in relief.” It wasn’t just the freshmen that Dill praised for their efforts. “Trey Wills and Isaac Kent had good days at the plate with two hits apiece,” he said. “Tyler Robbins did an excellent job behind the plate including a spectacular diving catch to end the game.” “We have a young team with only one senior and four freshmen that we will count on to produce,” he continued. “I am happy with how they have played and competed through the first two games.” When asked if his team’s defensive performance is ahead of schedule over the first two games Dill said, “That’s hard to tell. I think we will be a better defensive team when I get some guys back from injury. We had no errors against Frankfort due in large part to the high number of strikeouts. We made one error against Spencer and another mental mistake that cost us three runs. We also have some guys playing out of position until we get Blake Prather healthy in the next week or so. But overall, without being on the field until Monday, I am pleased with our play.”

Williamstown 4 HCHS 2

The Wildcats hosted Williamstown Friday and took their first loss of the season in another pitching duel. Wills made his first start for the Wildcats and after giving up two runs in the first inning, settled in to shut down the Demons’ offense over the next three innings. The Cats’ offense started slowly with several strikeouts over the first two innings but came alive in the third inning when Trevyn Spencer led off with a single and Kent walked. Spencer and Kent moved to second and third on a wild pitch. Trey Wills came up with a two-out two-run RBI single to score Spencer and Kent and tie the game. Neither team could score in the fourth and fifth innings but Wills began to show signs of fatigue in the sixth. The Williamstown leadoff hitter reached on an error and advanced to third on a wild pitch. Wills gave up his first walk of the game to put runners on first and third. Clark came on in relief of Wills and gave up an RBI double to make it 4-2. Clark settled down and got out of the inning with no further damage. Clark was helped by a nice defensive play from backup first baseman Dawson Armstrong who snagged a line drive and wheeled toward second and fired to Kent for a double play to end the inning. Murray nearly got a rally going for the Wildcats in the bottom of the inning when he hit a hard shot to the outfield. But the Williamstown center-fielder made a nice diving catch to end the threat. Murray came on in relief in the top of the seventh inning and struck out three batters while hitting one to keep the Cats in the game. But Henry County could not get a runner on in their final at-bat and the Williamstown pitcher finished with a complete game. “This game came down to one thing,” Dill said. “We didn’t hit. We only had two hits and that doesn’t win very many games. We misplayed a few balls and they got some big hits when they needed to.” But some aspects of his team’s play encourage Dill. “I am so pleased with our pitching right now, which is really carrying us,” he said. “We are throwing strikes and not walking a lot of guys, which is keeping us in games until we can get some guys back from injury and figure it out offensively. “Trey Wills pitched really well,” Dill continued. “He also got one of our two hits that drove in our only two runs. I can’t complain about his effort. Early in the year, he got a little tired and I took him out due to pitch count. Daniel Murray also came in and pitched really well.” The Wildcats fell to 2-1 while Williamstown is 1-0.

HCHS 3 Waggener 2

The Wildcats got another strong pitching performance on Saturday when they traveled to Louisville to take on Waggener. The Wildcats did all their damage in the first inning when they scored three runs. Smith started and went five innings, giving up only two runs. Jaydon Berry pitched two innings of relief to get the save. “Jaydon got a big strikeout with two on and one out in the bottom of the seventh after we lost a ball in the sun,” Dill said. “We also turned three double plays in the game to stop some of Waggener’s big scoring threats. “Again, I was pleased with our pitching,” he continued. “Connor and Jaydon only walked one batter. Trey had two hits and continues to swing the bat well.” Dill was also pleased with the defense but isn’t completely satisfied with it. “Our defense made some big plays,” Dill said. “The three double plays really helped our pitching keep their pitch count down. We weren’t perfect defensively, but given the guys we had out and it still being so early, I was pleased.” Dill thinks the team could win a lot of games if the pitching and defense continue to be strong but is concerned about the offense. “Offensively, we’ve struggled so far,” he said. “I think that will get better when we get some of our guys back from injury and our young guys learn how to approach at-bats at the varsity level. One thing I’ve been pleased with is we have seen the best pitcher on every team we have faced so far. This is only going to help us in the long run.”

actual on-field action. “It was great to get that first game under our belt and even better to get a win out of it,” Kasten said. “No matter how much experience you have, opening day will always bring jitters and we felt them in that first inning. Good to have that out of the way.”

Ballard 9 HCHS 0

The Lady Cats traveled to Louisville for the second game of the season against the highly ranked Ballard Bruins. The Lady Cats fell behind early but kept the game close until the Bruins broke out for five runs in the sixth inning to put the game away. The Lady Cats managed only two hits by Molly Williamson and Savannah Mertz in the game and committed five errors but Kasten was not displeased with their offensive production. “I was generally pleased with the first five innings,” Kasten said. “I thought Aly pitched a great game and held her own against one of the traditionally best teams in the state. We had a couple of miscues in the infield, but also made a lot of good plays. Molly Williamson was tested at third base and came up with great play after great play.” Kasten said the line score is deceiving. “We hit the ball much better than the book will say, but a lot of those hits were right at people,” he said. “If we keep hitting the ball the way we have in the first two games, I think we will be in a lot of games.” Kasten was not pleased with Ballard’s big inning. “The sixth inning was not up to par,” Kasten said. “We got a little worn down and made some mental mistakes that really hurt us. This game was about respect for us. Ballard is ranked sixth in the state and we wanted to go down and play them and see where we really are as a team. Going into the sixth inning, it was a 4-0 ballgame and we were in it. I really still felt like with the way we were hitting balls, that eventually they could drop and we could put something on the board. “The sixth was the game changer,” he continued. “A couple of things didn’t go our way and we could see the energy just draining out of our girls. We need to work on our mentality.” The Lady Cats’ coach is still positive about his team’s chances for a successful season. “As I said, this game was about respect and although a 4-run game looks a whole lot better than a 9-run game, we now know that we are going to go and continue to earn respect from other teams that we play and those that are keeping track of us,” Kasten said. “I feel that we have one of the best teams in the region, but we are going to have to go out and prove it day after day. The girls know that and are willing to work to prove it.”

Wildcats win 3 of 4 in opening week

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Henry County Wildcats' baseball team got their season off to a bright start when they traveled to Frankfort March 16 and defeated the Frankfort High School Panthers 4-0. The Wildcats got strong pitching performances from Bodie Clark and Connor Smith. Clark and Smith also played key roles on offense as the Cats managed to score four runs in the sixth inning with the benefit of only one hit. Smith scored the first run when he made it safely home on a passed ball and Clark provided a two-out, 2-run double to make it 3-0. Clark eventually scored the fourth and final run of the game. Pitching and defense dominated the first five innings. Clark started for the Wildcats and struck out five batters, gave up one hit and one walk and never allowed a base runner past first.

Smith came on to pitch the final four innings and struck out seven while allowing two hits and one walk. He also hit a batter.

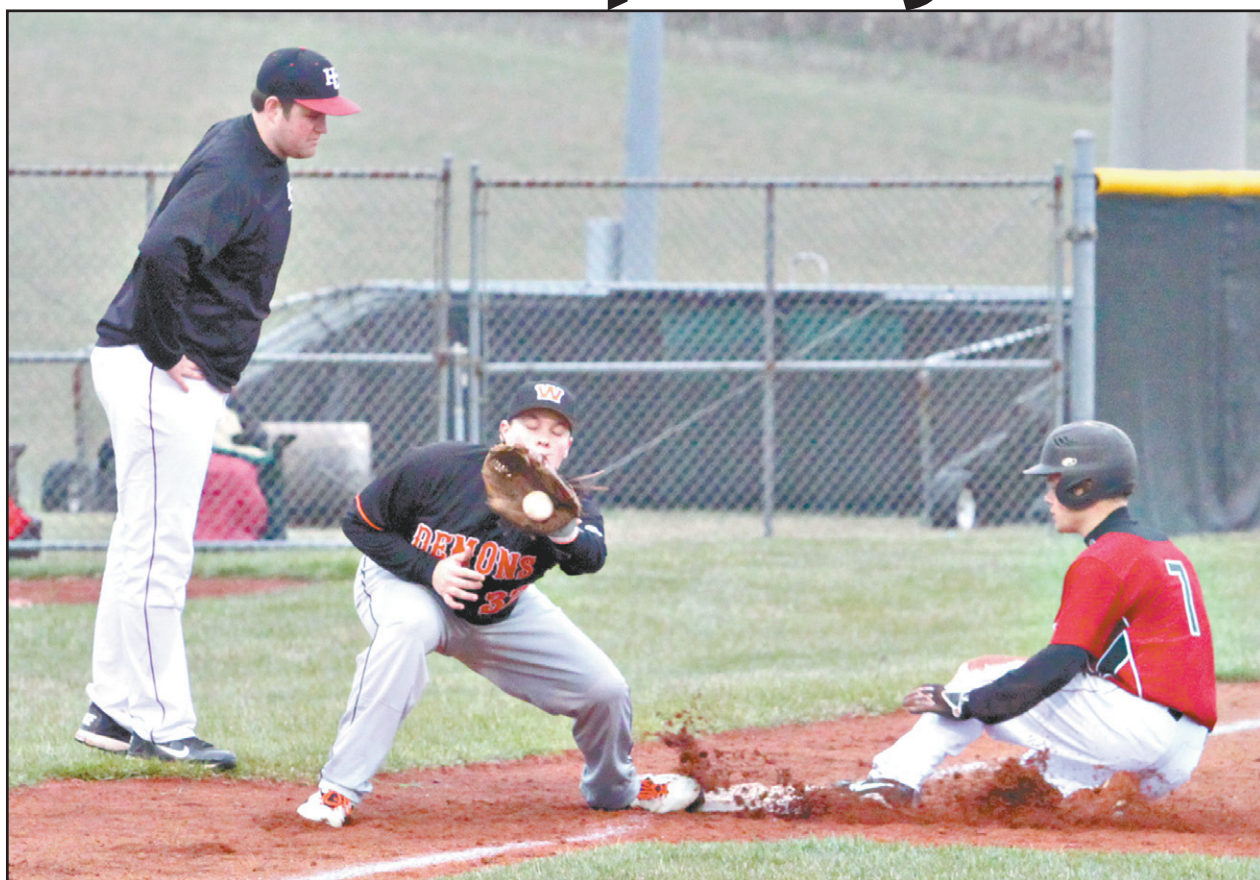

Smith was never seriously threatened until Frankfort got a leadoff walk in the seventh inning. The runner then advanced to second on a wild pitch and then to third on defensive indifference when the Wildcats decided not to throw to third on a steal attempt.

Smith settled down and struck out the next three batters to end the game.

Coach Stuart Dill praised the dynamic duo that led his team to victory on opening day.

"Obviously, Connor and Bodie really threw the ball well," he said. "They were also big at the plate. Connor reached base twice and Trevyn Spencer slides safely into third base as Coach Stuart Dill looks on. Spencer had a hit and scored a run for the Wildcats in their 4-2 loss to Williamstown in Henry County's home opener. The Wildcats won three road games last week against Frankfort, Spencer Co. and Waggener.

Lady Cats come out slugger in 1st game

Score 19 vs. WHS;
Fall to Ballard

BY GREG WOODS

The Henry County Lady Cats opened the season at home against the Williamstown Lady Demons March 17 by slugging 11 hits, including two home runs, four triples and a double on their way to a 19-3 win.

Savannah Mertz, a transfer from Eminence, hit a 3-run homer on her first swing as a Lady Cat in the bottom of the first to put the Lady Cats up 5-1. Shelby Ray added another 3-run home run in the second inning to make the score 9-1. The Lady Cats eventually scored seven more runs in the inning to lead 16-1 going into the third inning.

Williamstown scored two runs in the top of the third to keep the game from ending but Olivia Whaley's 3-run triple ended the game on the 15-run mercy rule in the bottom of the third.

Aly Stanley pitched two innings for the Lady

Cats and gave up two runs, one earned, and Paige DeBurger pitched one inning of relief and gave up one earned run. Stanley struck out four batters and walked two while DeBurger had no strikeouts or walks.

Stanley went 3-4 at the plate with a triple and two singles. She also had two stolen bases scored four runs and had two RBIs.

Whaley went 2-2 with two walks and two triples while scoring three runs and knocking in four runs.

Mertz was 2-2 with a walk, a home run and a triple. She scored two runs and had five RBIs.

Ray finished 2-2 with a walk, a home run and a double. She had a stolen base, scored three times and knocked in four runs.

When asked if he was surprised about the hitting spree his team went on in the first game of the season Lady Cats' coach Jon Kasten said, "Yes and no. With the weather being so bad, we were forced to do a lot of work inside the fieldhouse, which means we did a lot of hitting. I figured that we would start the season with decent hitting.

"I didn't expect us to hit balls as solidly as we did on our first day of hitting live pitching outside," Kasten continued. "I was pleasantly surprised at the number of hard hit balls that we had. I was really pleased with how patient we were at the plate. We saw a lot of pitches and waited to hit the one that we wanted. We didn't chase a lot of pitches out of the strike zone."

But Kasten wasn't satisfied after just one game of the season. His team had six errors in the game.

"We need to improve everywhere," he said. "Obviously, we need to tighten up our defense. That will come as we get more time out on the field taking balls off the dirt instead of off concrete or turf. I think we need to communicate better during the game with each other.

"We need to work on our base running as well," Kasten continued. "We're not getting good jumps on the pitcher, not really taking good leads, or running the bases very well. The good thing is that we were finally able to see where our areas of concern are. We really didn't know going into the season without getting in a scrimmage or many field practices."

Kasten is glad the weather has cleared and his team could get some

HC track opens at CAL

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Henry County High School Track team traveled to Louisville Saturday to compete in the Harry Greschel Invitational at Christian Academy of Louisville. Junior Cameron Johnson led the boys' team with a fourth place finish in the triple jump. Johnson's best leap was 40 feet, 1 inch. Johnson also set a personal record in the long jump of 19 feet, .5 inches and finished ninth.

Patrick Cravens scored in the shot put, placing ninth with a distance of 39 feet, 10.5 inches and in the discus with a throw of 114 feet, 5 inches.

Russell Beverly also had a good showing in the triple jump with a distance of 37 feet, 7.75 inches, which placed him eighth.

Dale Davis finished fifth in the high jump for the Cats with a leap of 5 feet, 10 inches.

For the girls' team, Morgan Miller placed seventh in the pole vault with a height of 6 feet, 6 inches.

Coach Zac Mings said he used the first meet at CAL to set a baseline for the team.

"Overall, the Harry Greschel Invitational was a learning experience to gauge where we are and where we need to be," Mings said. "We had four people out for the Beta Club trip. All of them would have been contributors.

"This will be one of our tougher meets," he continued. "But it gives those who have an opportunity to compete at the regional and state level a chance to see what they are up against. Although we were up against tougher competition Saturday, we could have competed at a higher level."

Mings thinks his team

Serena Dockter-RBI triple against Country Day.

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Eminence Warriors softball team opened the season in Bardstown against the Bethlehem Banshees on March 16 and fell 15-0 in three innings.

Coach Jerry Martin has an even younger team than last year with only one senior on the roster.

Serena Dockter has moved from first base to the pitcher mound for the Warriors this year.

"She has been working very hard on pitching and is getting better every day," Martin said. "Her defense was very good. She has an incredible drive and will to win. The rest of the team doesn't have that yet. They are too accepting of defeat. I am pushing hard to get them out of that."

Martin thinks the younger kids on the team have the same sort of drive as Dockter.

"Maddie McKinley is a freshman who hasn't played before and she is making great strides," Martin said.

Martin is focusing on one area of improvement early in the season.

"We had too many errors," he said. "Our defense needs improvement. We are even younger than last year and so we need to work on the basics of defense first."

KCD 12 EHS 2

The Warriors were back in action two days later as they traveled to Louisville to take on Kentucky Country Day.

The Warriors showed improvement but fell by 10 runs in five innings.

Serena Dockter had an RBI triple to score Daphna Dale in the first inning and Madison Dockter had an RBI single in the fifth to score Amiya Hunt.

"Serena pitched better, cutting her walks in half in this game," Martin said. "She also was very good on defense. Fortunately, KCD hit a lot of balls back to her. On one play, she dove to catch a little bloop pop up and then rolled to her back and threw to first for a double play."

Maddie McKinley also showed continued improvement in the field.

"Maddie played second base for the first time and was able to catch a blooper and throw to second for a double play. She made several nice plays for someone who hadn't played the position before."

The team did better at the plate, getting four hits from four different players but Martin continued to emphasize fundamentals.

"We had a couple of base running errors that cost us runs but overall were better offensively," he said. "But we are focused on defense right now. You have to be able to stop people from scoring first. We aren't going to outslug anybody."
